OPEN LETTER

A call of silence, from heart to heart, to the truth-seekers of the world.

To you who seek not the easy or the comforting, but the truth.
To you who seek the meaning of your life
To those who stay where others turn away. Who look where others get lost.
Who sense that, beyond the world's noise, a deeper order is at work.

All those who seek this inner, universal truth, regardless of their origin, language, or circumstances, share a deep search for meaning and purpose that connects the very core of their souls. You are not alone.

Those who step onto this path enter a greater whole:

an open circle of seekers — a circle without beginning or end — of those who seek and those who have already found: a cosmic circle.

This circle transcends all divisions, conflicts, and tensions created and perpetuated by egocentric consciousness.

It is a living field — a beacon of hope, compassion, and understanding — pointing to the truth that we, as human beings, have a higher task to fulfill.

Where clarity arises, it strengthens. Where sincerity is practiced, it does not go unnoticed.

One cannot join this circle. However, one can attune oneself to it.

Where this happens, support becomes apparent — not as intervention, but as an amplification of what becomes true within oneself.

This connection does not begin outside of you.

It begins in your inner order because you are woven in a threefold form:

Impressions are received and processed in the body through the senses, the nervous system, the brain, and the structures that have grown within you.

What you perceive is never immediate, but is already shaped.

In the soul, this processing takes the form of experience, in the form of images, feelings, and meanings through which you make sense of the world.

Thus, your reality arises. However, this reality is not the world itself.

Only by transforming your soul and connecting with the spirit can you recognize that what you experience is not identical to what is.

This frees you — not from the world, but from confusion.

Between interpretation and recognition lies a threshold.

Here, it is your heart that is active.

At the center of the heart lies the inner source of life: the spirit spark, the rosebud, the lotus, which connects us as humanity, uniting us with nature and the surrounding cosmos. From that center, the heart can become a source of wisdom born of love.

The deepest mystery of our existence lies hidden within our hearts.

It waits to be discovered by us. Those who know their heart and embody Gnosis — the thinking of the heart — can be a light in the world. This light radiates into the world as a vibration of love that is truly helpful, comforting and encouraging.

This becomes especially essential in these difficult times.

At present, conflict, violence and fear are rising like heavy clouds on the horizon of this delicate world. Polarization grows — both outside and within.

This storm will pass, as all storms have passed before.

But what matters now is not only announcing a new morning, but also being one of its countless beams of light.

Protect your heart and care for your soul!

In the soul, there is no division or distance between people, and no limitation of knowledge.

A renewed soul connects spirit and matter. It connects God and humanity, and the mortal and immortal within us. The time is coming to unlock that source within ourselves.

Let us be Light in the world as one heart, connected to the heart of the world!

May this Light and this connection, which transcends all boundaries, bring us joy, strength, and a deep sense of purpose.
